

The Boston Strangler

LOOK INTO HIS EYES.

Would you trust him? 2000 women did.

They were raped. Would you let him into your home? 13 women did.

They died a terrifying death.

HURRAHS FOR THE BOSTON STRANGLER

“Mr. Frank omits nothing about the murders . . . or about the pathetic victims. . . . He tells us everything there is to tell about the case, and he tells it chronologically, as it happened, and without a moment of artificially contrived suspense. The result is completely satisfying.”—THE NEW YORKER

“I know of no book in the field of crime which matches the fascinating research executed by Gerold Frank.” —Jim Bishop

“Gerold Frank has done a superb reportorial job. Its sheer narrative interest can be guaranteed to hold any reader, but only the most thoughtless will read it ‘for kicks.’ It raises some very important questions about human nature and about crime and punishment. . . . And it demonstrated that the most horrible material extant can be described by a writer without offensiveness when he is not out to produce a shocker.”—CHICAGO TRIBUNE

“Objective, realistic and marvelously well-told . . . a great documentary.”
—Maxwell Geismar

“Compulsively readable . . . continuously engrossing. . . . The general reader, as well as the mystery fan and the student of psychology, sociology or criminology, will be fascinated by it.”—THE NEW YORK TIMES
