THE SATURDAY EVENING POST READER OF SEA STORIES

For as long as men have gone down to the sea in ships, storytellers have told tales of the briny deep to eager audiences. This fine collection of stories from the pages of The Saturday Evening Post demonstrates that even today, in the space age, the lure of the sea remains undiminished.

As these stories attest, our modern authors have continued in the tradition of the great storytellers of the past, writing with humour and awe of the beautiful, mysterious, and often cruel sea.
